

SPEARS DECLARES CREW OF RESOLUTE OUTSAILED SHAMROCK'S

factors that she did not quite make the course on which she was pointed—that she made some leeway in spite of her speed. Moreover, her speed was not so much greater than Resolute's as it seemed to be as seen from the evening press boat.

As time passed the wind proved somewhat variable in its course and strength. In its veering it helped first Resolute and then Shamrock, but all the time Resolute worked up wind and Shamrock drifted along until an hour had passed.

At that time an officer of the press boat—Goldborough—plotted the position of the two racers by means of a range finder, and this located Shamrock 300 yards forward of the beam of Resolute, but 200 yards astern of Resolute's course.

It seemed, therefore, that if Shamrock had tacked at that time to cross Resolute's course she would have passed 500 yards (25 per cent. of a mile) astern of the defender.

During the first hour, in a light-air race, where the breeze, such as it was, came to each alike so far as any spectator could see, the defender gained more than a quarter of a mile. She proved the superiority of her skipper and crew, and she confirmed the impression she had made by her work during the first leg of Thursday's race.

In a steady breeze fit to carry the racers over the windward leg within the time limit she could afford to give Shamrock a time allowance instead of taking the allowance (still 6 minutes 40 seconds) to which her size entitled her.

CONTEST MATTER OF LUCK AFTER THE FIRST HOUR.

After the first hour, however, the contest became a matter of luck. The Shamrock's mascot brought her to victory in Thursday's race by wrecking Resolute. In this race they treated the challenger as mascots usually treat those who carry them. For as time passed the wind backed and forth, and the defender's lead more than it backed; meanwhile, it favored first one and then the other, but Shamrock slightly more than Resolute until after the first mark came into view. Then the sea gods gave the challenger a tow line and drew her up until she was, through a series of short tacks, no more than a cable's length off Resolute's lee quarter. Beyond doubt, old Neptune chuckled as he noted just then the condition of Shamrock's crew. Perhaps the crew thought their gain was due to the setting of a tiny jib top-sail in place of the reaching jib top-sail they had been using, but Neptune knew better and he was preparing a surprise.

Shortly after 4 o'clock, when the boats were on the port tack, and Shamrock seemed likely to run through Resolute's lee, the wind hauled a trifle to west. It had already hauled from southeast to near north and now it shook the jib and jib top-sail of Resolute.

Instantly, Capt. Adams eased her off and then brought her around to the starboard tack. Shamrock followed, of course, and she was then (as therefore) little if any more than 200 yards off Resolute's lee quarter. Nevertheless her mascot now deserted her shamefully. In ten minutes she was unable to point as high as Resolute pointed by a difference of perhaps two points. Rarely has any yacht sailor seen such a remarkable change of fortune. In half a mile Shamrock was half an hour to the bad. She had lost the wind and was unable to find it, while Resolute held it. And though it was light, she simply died from the challenger.

Resolute rounded the first turn at 4:32:37, as taken on the yacht Cornair. Shamrock was then a mile away and veering in the calm like a spar buoy. Finally, after many short tacks, she came to the turn at 5:10:06, or 38 minutes 29 seconds behind Resolute.

In the meantime Resolute had held her charming little gale and was actually hull down and almost out of sight altogether in the smoky mist off Long Branch.

It was not, of course, her superiority in model and handling that gave her this lead; it was the desertion of Shamrock's traitorous mascot from their unhappy owner.

After rounding the first mark the race at one time helped Shamrock until she came up within two miles of Resolute—perhaps she was nearer —but they again deserted her and left her limp in sail if not in the courage of her crew.

Shamrock covered the last leg in less time than Resolute had used, but found the gain not too satisfactory.

Perhaps some friends of the challenger will hope for a smothering wind to-morrow, for that would at least imperil the top-hammer of the close-cut defender. They may also hope for a rain, because that would shrink Resolute's mainsail, and increase the strain on the throat halyards as it did on Thursday. It might once more increase that strain to the breaking point.

But not Sir Thomas or his crew will think of such things. What they hope for is a strong breeze, fair and true, that will carry the racers over the unfinished triangle course in less than four hours. And for that all good sailormen alike will hope.

Want Bill to Run for Senate.
BINGHAMTON, July 18.—Many Republicans opposed to Senator Wadsworth are urging Representative Walter W. Hill to enter the race against him. Mr. Hill, who had planned to retire at the end of his present term in Congress, is not expected to accept.

WIRELESS OVERSEA PHONE NOW READY

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., July 19.—Marconi experts have completed the installation of apparatus for wireless communication by telephone with the Canadian liner Victorias, due to leave Liverpool to-morrow.

The experiment here is designed for three purposes: First, to prove the possibility of transmitting telephonic signals across the Atlantic, which, it is believed, will result before the experiment has closed. Second, to send them at least half way across the Atlantic. Third, to demonstrate to a gathering of British journalists the possibilities of wireless telephony for communication over sea spaces, desert wastes, areas where ordinary telephonic communication is impossible, and especially between the ground and airplanes and between different airplanes operating in the heavens.

New England Newspaper Alliance and a member of the Corinthian Yacht Club.
